

2008 already??!

“Cartoon Time”

is this years subject! Pull up a pillow and help yourself to cereal, but clean up your spills! Watch out for Kodos the cat - he’s pure concentrated evil, with claws, and he wants your food and to destroy your jacket - so hang it up somewhere!

Enjoy the toons!

The Hulk “Terror of the T-Gun” Dr Banner’s latest invention sends the hulk into a post-apocalyptic future full of gayly clad warriors who put him in the middle of their war.

Justice League “The Once and Future Thing Part 1” Batman, Wonder Woman and Green Lantern follow a time-travelling thief to the old West. Stay tuned for the conclusion at the end of the party!

Rocket Robin Hood: “The Time Machine” Rather than just kill them to get rid of them, the Sheriff sends our futuristic heroes to the distant past where they meet their ancestral namesakes.

Thundarr the Barbarian: “Portal Into Time” Our favourite futuristic post-apocalyptic Star Wars ripoff barbarian and his companions travel 2000 years backwards through time to the 1980’s, where they must learn how to use the Yellow Pages.

The Herculoids. Oton and his “Time Creatures” want to destroy the past, which is, of course, the present for The Herculoids! Zandor must follow them 5000 years in the future to rescue his son, Dorno.

Dungeons & Dragons “The Time Lost” Venger gives a modern jet plane to a WWII fighter pilot so that he can go back to Earth and win the war for Germany. It’s up to Dungeon Master’s pupils to convince Josef Mueller that Hitler’s a boob.

The Ripping Friends: “The Man From Next Thursday, Part 1.” John “Ren & Stimpy” Kricfalusi’s short-lived superhero series of manly men. A fiend from the future steals the Ripping Friends’ “perfect” DNA, which he turns into “Riptonite” in order to kill the Ripping brothers. Stay around for the conclusion later in the program!

Peabody’s Improbable History. Mr Peabody and his boy Sherman use the WABAC machine to make sure James Bowie makes his famous knife.

Superfriends: “The Krypton Syndrome” Superman is sucked into a black hole and finds himself in the distant past, near Krypton, just before it explodes. He saves Krypton only to return to an Earth conquered by the Legion of Doom. Chilling!

Powerpuff Girls “Get Back JoJo”: It’s parent job day at Pokey Oaks Kindergarten and when it’s the professor’s turn he explain what he does for a living, he demonstrates with his newest invention.

Looney Tunes “The Old Grey Hare” A frustrated Elmer is shown by God exactly when he’ll finally catch Bugs Bunny!

Venture Brothers: “Escape to the House of Mummies, Part II” Brock and the boys are trapped in the clutches of an Egyptian cult and their time machine. But Dr Venture is too sidetracked by a wager with Dr. Orpheus to save them. It’s up to a pantheon of history’s greatest men to mount a time-bending rescue!

The Simpsons: “Time and Punishment” Homer’s repair job on a toaster sends him back through time where he inadvertently changes the present.

Freakazoid: “Freakazoid is History!” A routine job of rescuing the President turns into an unexpected TV parody when a vortex sucks Freakazoid and some honey-roasted nuts back to Pearl Harbor, circa 1941. Can he turn back the Japanese torpedo planes and change the course of history, or will he just stand there gaping at the HULA GIRLS!!!

Duckman: “The Once And Future Duck” Ajax opens a rift in the time/space continuum with his clock radio. Duckman discovers from a future version of himself that his future hinges on Charles and Mambo’s tuba recital. Unfortunately Duckman tries to use these visits from his future selves to make a his decisions and suddenly discover every little decision he makes has a big impact on his future.

The Tick: “Leonardo Da Vinci and His Fightin’ Genius Time Commandos” The Mother of Invention (voiced by Paul Williams) uses his time travel device to pull the greatest inventors out of time so that he can steal and take credit for their inventions.

Futurama: “Time Keeps on Slipping” In the 30th Century, the once entertaining Harlem Globetrotters are now feared as they will humiliate any planet in the Universe who dares to play them. Feeling up to the challenge, Professor Farnsworth creates a group of mutant basketball players and his secret winning ingredient is chronitons, time particles found in the Tempus Nebula.

Samurai Jack “Robo-Samurai vs Mondo-Bot” Flung from ancient Japan into a futuristic Earth peopled by aliens and talking dogs, Jack ever searches for a way home and a way to defeat the evil demon Aku. This time he finds himself the protector of a city peopled by robots in need.

The Ripping Friends “The Man From Next Thursday Part 2” - continued from earlier this morning!

Justice League: “The Once And Future Thing Part 2” - the stunning conclusion ties in with Batman Beyond, if you’ve ever seen that.