

500 POST-APOCALYPTIC PLACE NAMES

NO TIME FOR INTRODUCTIONS

You didn't buy this document for me to tell you that I'm the co-creator of the ENnie Award-winning Spaceship Zero roleplaying game, or that I'm working on a post-apocalyptic game called Ruin Nation using similar mechanics, or that my illustrations have appeared in hundreds of D&D, Call of Cthulhu and other game books and card games. So I won't bore you with all that.

YOU KNOW HOW TO USE THIS ALREADY

But just in case, obtain a number between 01 and 100 with your random number generator of choice. Each number will give you five options, including real-world place names, locations from existing media and places that could fit in an Old West setting. Or, if you prefer, go old school, close your eyes and point to the page instead of finding a number.

Following are some sample prefixes and suffixes you can add to pretty much anything, but especially the names in the first column. Also you may notice an inordinate amount of places with "Slade" in the name. That's just a placeholder character name that you can replace with a character name of your own devising. Maybe Slade is the discoverer or the founder of the location, or maybe that's where they were killed. In truth most of the locations on the list would work with a character name prefix (Dirk's Pit, Shera's Doom, etc)

Prefixes: Big/Little, Camp, Fort, High/Low, New/Old, Lone, Lower/Upper, Mount, North/South/East/West, Color (Black, Brown, Grey, Red, White, etc), Numbers (Two, Three, etc)

Suffixes: Alley, Banks, Base, Bay, Bluff, Bog, Bridge, Burg, Burrough, Butte, City, Cliffs, Corner(s), Creek, Crossing, Dam, Dome, Dunes, End, Falls, Fields, Fork, Gardens, Gate, Gulch, Gully, Harbor, Hill(s), Hole, Island, Land, Landing, Marsh, Mine(s), Mountain, Numbers (1, 2, 3...), Pass, Place, Plain(s), Point, Pond, Pool, Ridge, Rock(s), Site, Station, Swamp, Territory, Town, Valley, Ville, Zone
